

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary just days before the election does not serve the public interest; rather, it is an abuse of the privilege given the company to use public airways free of charge. That any single company has such widespread power to impose its own political views on the public is a travesty.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
